

Maritime Patrol Association Scholar

Sarah McGonagle

Spring Hill, TN

College: The George Washington University

2020-2021: Junior

Major: International Affairs

Extracurricular & Community-Service Highlights:

Women's Leadership Program, Feminist Student Union (FSU) member, Campaign GW, volunteer with College Democrats and Administrative Assistant at the Institute of European, Russian and Eurasian Studies at George Washington University.

Receiving a scholarship from the Maritime Patrol Association has been and continues to be instrumental in my success. It has provided me with some of the means to continue my education at my first-choice school, the George Washington University, and has given me further motivation to succeed. I am especially grateful to feel the support from the military community, as I have always been proud of my past as a military brat. I will use this scholarship in preparation of pursuing a lifetime of public service, so I can further give back to my country-which has given so much to me and my family. Being recognized by the Maritime Patrol Association in this manner validates all the hard work I have put in throughout my academic career and motivates me to work even harder to achieve all my goals and aspirations. The cost of college is overwhelming and continues to be a challenge for my parents and I, especially during such uncertain times- but receiving this scholarship will be a great help as I continue my path at George Washington.