

The pandemic made a lot of things very challenging with online classes, virtual labs, and a LOT of Zoom meetings, but I am so glad that my school managed the pandemic well and we never had any big concerning outbreaks like other colleges. Thankfully, I was able to attend about half of my classes during the fall semester in person, and I am taking even more in person this coming semester. Purdue has put a lot of protocols in place to keep classrooms and lab space safe for students, so I am glad to continue my education in as "normal" of an environment as possible. I'm looking forward to the spring semester and starting up new classes soon!
